

I AM COMIN' BABY

Video animation, 2012, 48", edition of 5 + 2AP.

While the fate fulfills our desires, "the man's desire finds its meaning in the other's desire." The will to figure one's imagination changes the nature of things, turning desire into reality. This story started from a conversation with my girlfriend on Skype, apparently ended prematurely with the fall of my netbook and the irreparable damage to its screen. That event interrupted the course of events, but luck made prevail the ideal against the concrete, transcending the difficulties of a long distance relationship. The informatic incident transformed my laptop's LCD screen, giving life to my avatar which was partially ready to start a journey through the net in order to kiss my companion's lips once more. To complete the formation of my alter ego (my Avatar), I kneaded the back of the screen for an hour and a half. My action led to the shutdown of my PC, but also to the gift that made possible the fulfillment of two desires.